

Koobi Fora Field School in Paleoanthropology

Dates for 2012
June 15 - July 25

Koobi Fora Field School is the world's premier field based training program in Paleoanthropology.

Come with us to Northern Kenya on the shores of Lake Turkana and experience the adventure of a lifetime.

Held annually for 6 weeks during June and July, the Koobi Fora Field School is an eight credit summer course sequence from Rutgers University held in Northern Kenya with a week long Wildlife Ecology session at Mugie Ranch in the Lakipia Plateau.

The study of our human prehistory is a blend of the sciences of Archaeology, Geology, Anthropology and Paleoecology.

Join our international team of scientists, as we uncover 1.5 million year old hominid and other fossils, stone tools, and ancient footprints in Koobi Fora at the World Heritage site of Sibiloi National Park.

Koobi Fora Field School is a fully integrated training and research program of the National Museums of Kenya (NMK) and Rutgers University, New Jersey. The field school is staffed by Kenyan, South African and American researchers and support staff. Senior NMK researchers are Dr. P. Kiura (Head of Archaeology) and Dr. E. Mbua (Director, Earth Sciences Division), Other senior researchers include Dr. C. Dillian (Costal Carolina University, USA), Dr. M. Bamford, Wittswatersrand University, SA), Dr.D. Braun (University of Capetown, SA and Baylor University, USA), Dr. B. Richmond, George Washington University, Dr. Rene Bobe (George Washington University, USA) and Professor J.W.K. Harris (Rutgers University, USA).

rci.rutgers.edu/~kffs

Camp with Zebra, Lions, and Elephants. Swim in the Jade Sea. Become a field archaeologist. Earn 8 upper division credits in Anthropology and learn more than you ever thought possible about Human Evolutionary Studies. Travel through time with us to Koobi Fora!

What: Koobi Fora Field School in Paleoanthropology

Where: Northern and Central Kenya

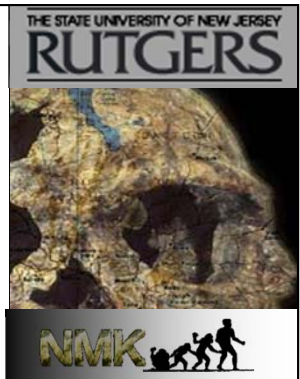

When: June 15 –July 26 2012

8 Credits in Paleoanthropology Rutgers University

Contact: Professor JWK Harris

jwharris@rci.rutgers.edu

Apply online at <http://studyabroad.rutgers.edu/>

Koobi Fora Field School in Paleoanthropology