

Lester Pearson's Peacekeeping: The Truth May Hurt

A Talk by Yves Engler

"Canada's Nobel Peace Prize winner and eminent statesman, Lester Pearson was a major criminal, really extreme. He didn't have the power to be like an American president, but if he'd had it, he would have been the same. He tried." - Noam Chomsky

Written in the form of a submission to an imagined "Truth and Reconciliation" commission about Canada's foreign policy past, Lester Pearson's Peacekeeping: The Truth May Hurt will change how you think about this country's most famous statesman. Rather than an 'honest broker' or 'peacekeeper' Pearson was an ardent cold warrior who backed colonialism and apartheid in Africa, Zionism, coups in Guatemala, Iran and Brazil and the US invasion of the Dominican Republic. A beneficiary of US intervention in Canadian political affairs, the Nobel Peace laureate provided important support to the US in Vietnam and pushed to send troops to the American-led war in Korea. Pearson helped construct the post World War II US-empire. This book challenges one of the most important (and useful) Canadian foreign policy myths.

Yves Engler has been dubbed "one of the most important voices on the Canadian Left today" (Briarpatch), "in the mould of I. F. Stone" (Globe and Mail), "ever-insightful" (rabble.ca) and a "Leftist gadfly" (Ottawa Citizen). His six books have been praised by Naomi Klein, Noam Chomsky, William Blum, Rick Salutin and many others.

Thursday March 8th, 2012
7:00 pm
Wilfrid Laurier University
Dr. Alvin Woods Building
Room 2-106

Event sponsored by the Department of Sociology, the Department of Political Science, the Faculty of Arts, and the Academic Council on the United Nations System.

Public Event
Free Admission

Books by Yves Engler: Lester Pearson's Peacekeeping: The Truth May Hurt, Stop Signs: Cars and Capitalism, On the Road to Economic, Social and Ecological Decay (with Bianca Mugenyi), Canada and Israel: Building Apartheid, The Black Book of Canadian Foreign Policy, Canada in Haiti (with Anthony Fenton), Playing Left Wing: From Rink Rat to Student Radical.

