Conrad Grebel University College's Peace and Conflict Studies program (PACS) at the University of Waterloo was the first peace studies program in Canada, and has remained a leader in peace education for 40 years. With PACS' innovative approach to learning, students can choose arts-based assignment options in many courses.

Celebrate PACS' 40th anniversary with us by experiencing some of the most compelling arts-based assignments completed by students over the past decade. This artwork highlights the diverse, innovative, and transformational nature of the PACS program and PACS students.
