Grotowski, Women, and Contemporary Performance* is the recipient of the Canadian Association for Theatre Research 2014 Ann Saddlemyer Book Award Honorable Mention.

"As both a scholar and a performer herself, Magnat's research relies upon an interdisciplinary methodology, combining fieldwork, artistic collaboration with her subjects, and the articulation of her embodied research through writing. The result is an insightful account of the work of such artists as Rena Mirecka, Ewa Benesz, Katharina Seyferth, and Ang Gey Pin. This book will be a valuable resource for scholars interested in the work of Grotowski, Polish theatre, women theatre practitioners, as well as those engaged in practice-as-research." - Review by Tanya Dean, TDR

As the first investigation of women's foremost contributions to Grotowski's theatrical and post-theatrical research, this book is grounded in four years of multi-sited fieldwork conducted in Poland, Italy, France, and Denmark. Situated at the intersection of performance studies, experimental ethnography, and Indigenous research methodologies, this exploration of the artistic journeys and current creative practices of key women from different cultures and generations is complemented by a Documentary Film Series created in close collaboration with these artists and featured on the Routledge Performance Archive (www.routledgeperformancearchive.com).
